Case study: Decentralization and Participatory Management example: Library Committee

The library committee receives its annual budget for purchase of knowledge resource material

Thereafter, the committee arranges for a week-long book exhibition of various publishing houses that exposes the students and faculty to a wide range of literary material.

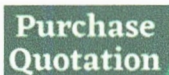

After everyone has gone through a wide range of literary material, the Heads of all the departments consult their staffs and the students

The books and journals to be procured for that particular year are then shortlisted and recommended to the library committee

The library committee then reviews the recommendations

Quotations are called for from different vendors and the best is selected

And thereafter purchased.
